

Expertise:
eClinicalWorks

Sarah Saj Managing Consultant

Sarah Saj has over twelve years of experience as an end-user of Electronic Health Record (EHR) systems, with eClinicalWorks (eCW) being her primary EHR. Currently, Sarah is a Managing Consultant at Medical Advantage. In this role, she is responsible for team leadership, guiding and educating our clients on how to successfully implement, utilize, and optimize their EHR software. She is an exceptional trainer that knows how to engage practices to get the most from their software. Sarah specializes in eCW customization including specialty module build, template customization for specific patient conditions, quick tip videos, and tip sheet reference guides.

Prior to joining Medical Advantage, Sarah had over fifteen years of experience in the healthcare industry. She has held progressive roles in a medical practice including receptionist at an orthopedic surgeon practice, front office/clinical lead, and department coordinator at a large hospital organization. As a department coordinator, Sarah developed and implemented many successful workflows for staff and physicians to ensure accurate data entry and thorough documentation.

Some projects Sarah has managed include many successful large scale eCW implementations, system setup to include quality metrics and patient tracking, customizing and creating effective workflows, as well as organization standardization. Sarah has a degree in medical services and business.

